GREECE MUST BOW
IN SUBMISSION
MUSSOLINI SAYS

Threatens More Drastic Terms
Unless Little Nation
Yields Quickly.

REVOLUTION REPORTED

League of Nations Will Take Matter Up Without Further Delay.

Premier Mussolini is quoted as declaring that if Greece does not meet his terms soon or begin evacuation of the island of Corfu these terms will be made more severe.

Rome reports that a grave internal situation prevails in Greece with a counter-revolutionary republican movement gaining ground, but this is denied by the Greek legation in London.

An Italian spokesman in Geneva declared that Italy never has officially repudiated the competency of the league of nations to pass upon disputes.

The ambassadors' council in Paris has received the Greek reply to the council's protest over the assassination of the Italian boundary commission and will consider the matter at the earliest opportunity.

LIONS STRESS
CONSTITUTION

Importance of Knowing Contents of Great Document Pointed Out.

The Lions Club program today centered around the Constitution of the United States. B. H. Epperson delivered an address on the importance of law abiding citizens taking part in governmental agencies.

He deprecated the tendency of good men to avoid jury service and failure to vote. Only forty percent of the legal voters of the United States avail themselves of the opportunity, he pointed out.

The American Bar Association is sponsoring a Constitution Week beginning Sept. 16. The Bar Association will urge ministers to preach on the constitution and other agencies be brought into action to advance the knowledge of this valuable instrument.

Prof. John Zimmerman of the College, who has been studying in Nashville this summer, also spoke on the importance of the Constitution and the place it holds in the history of government.

Prof. Oscar Parker, who spent the summer in New York and came back by boat to New Orleans, told of some of the incidents of his trip. He made known the good things of Oklahoma, and learned of several who expect to come out here. Progress on getting the road to the cemetery grave yard was reported by J. F. McKeel, a member of the committee. The city commissioners will cooperate in the matter, and it is believed the county commissioners will also.

A committee consisting of Tom
D. McKeown, J. F. McKeel and J.
E. Hickman was appointed to investigate means for getting the main building of the college insured. The matter will be taken up with the state officials, and determine what can be done along this line.

Progress on arranging for the Confederate Reunion was reported also. The committee, appointed by the Lions and Chamber of Commerce, to have general charge of the Reunion consists of W. J. Coffman, S. M. Shaw, J. H. Smith, M.
C. Taylor and Roy L. Givens.

A resolution was adopted, inviting the state meeting of the Carpenters Union to meet here next time.

Dr. Sam A. McKeel was appointed as a delegate to attend the state health convention which meets in Oklahoma City, September 21.

YOUNG BANDITS ROB
HIGH RAILROAD OFFICIALS

(By the Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.— Charles N. Levey, president of the Western Pacific railroad company, E. W. Mason, vice-president, and G. L. Phillips, assistant engineer, were held up by two youthful bandits who entered Mr. Levey's private car at Thornton near here early today and robbed them of approximately $150. Mr. Mason's watch also was taken.

MANY ADA BOOSTERS
VISITING NEIGHBORS

Approximately twenty-five cars left Ada early this morning on the first of the city booster trips that will carry speakers and boosters to all of the fairs of the country during this week.

The itinerary for today included Stratford on the road to Sulphur, a big reception already planned at the latter place, and Hickory, Roff and Pithugh on the return from Sulphur.

Included in the group were the members of the college band with their instruments. These furnished music for the gatherings at which Ada boosters were to make their speeches advertising the advantages offered by this city.

Practically all the county will be covered in the trips during the week as all of the township fairs will be visited.

ALLEN FAIR A
REAL SUCCESS

Excellent Line of Exhibits
Despite Long Drouth
of Summer.

The annual township fair at Allen Monday was highly creditable to all concerned, more especially when the long drought is considered. In spite of handicaps the citizens of that part of the county brought in a line of exhibits that would have done credit to a year much more seasonable than this one has been. More than 100 entries were made.

The farm exhibits embraced all of the leading crops of the county and the corn display was a surprise. Sorghum, grain, potatoes and garden vegetables also showed up well.

The fruit crop has suffered severely this year but the apples, plums, peaches and pears were of excellent quality.

The livestock exhibit was fair and the largest number of entries was Jersey cows, indicating that the people around there are giving special attention to better dairy stock. There were some good hogs, but some hog raisers said they were afraid to bring their best stuff to the fair fearing that the heat and exertion might cause injury.

The poultry exhibit was not very extensive, although some good birds were shown.

The ladies had many samples of their sewing and canning on display, an exhibit that was highly creditable.

Of course the boys and girls clubs were in evidence and as usual a good showing was made.

High Hill was the only school that had an exhibit. This school under the direction of Mrs. Bertha Perry, although small in size had an exhibit that would have been a credit to any school in the county, proving that it is not numbers that count everytime. The premiums awarded this exhibit amounted to about $20, which was fine for the first time the school had been represented at a fair.

A baby show was pulled off in the afternoon. The News reporter was informed that the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Castle-man won first honors.

There was not a dull hour during the entire day. The exhibits were put into place before noon and in the afternoon a number of races of various kinds were pulled off to amuse the crowd.

The Ada boosters and band under Prof. Pentem arrived about 3 o'clock and entertained the crowd with some good selections of music. Col. J. W. Davis delivered an address of welcome to the Ada boosters and urged that all participate in the county fair and expressed the hope that the most cordial feeling always be entertained for the county seat.

A noticeable feature of the day was the cheerful spirit that pervaded the crowd, everybody being buoyed up by the rains. The crowd attending was the largest the News reporter has seen at this fair during the past three years.

OIL NEWS

The Lancaster test well being drilled just southeast of the city is now just on top of a new sand that has excellent indications of being what the drillers are hoping for reports from the well indicate.

At present a depth of 1260 feet has been reached and a few days will be consumed in setting pipe.

The sand will not be entered until the last of the week at the earliest.

Those in charge express themselves as hopeful of success with the sand which they are about to penetrate.

BALKANS AGAIN EUROPE'S STORM-CENTER

tion of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria in 1914, which led to the World war. Insets show Premiers

A new war looms in the Balkans. If it comes, like the World war it will have been caused by assassins. Five members of the Albanian boundary commission, all Italians and headed by General Tellini, were ambushed and killed near Yanina, in northern Epirus. Italy demands an abject apology and is mobilizing both military and naval forces. It is reported that an Italian fleet already is on its way to stage a demonstration off the Piraeus and Athens. The Greeks have offered to submit the affair to the league of nations.

SOLDIERS RAID
LIQUOR JOINTS

Capture Several Thousand Gallons in Round of Tulsa County.

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Sept. 4.—Martial law in Tulsa last night turned to the enforcement of the liquor laws. Raids throughout the county were conducted by military forces under the martial law proclamation and in cooperation were the federal prohibition enforcement forces and the sheriff's office.

Several thousands gallons of beer and quantities of other liquors, together with much equipment, were confiscated. Proceedings will be filed in the civil courts against the persons taken by the military.

The military inquiry recessed last night after a busy day. It renewed its activity today and while military authorities refused to be quoted as to when more arrests may be made in the flogging cases observers declared they are expected at any time.

NORMAN RECOVERING
FROM RECENT FIRE

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 4. (Special).—Norman is recovering as quickly as possible from the disastrous fire of early Sunday morning which destroyed eight business buildings and damaged two others.
Revised estimates of the damage place the figures at approximately $300,000. Half of the loss is covered by insurance.

The Security National bank which was almost completely destroyed, will open offices Tuesday using the vaults of the First National bank, the postoffice and the City National bank until a new building can be obtained. The bank plans to rebuild at once.

Owners of all the buildings, except two, owned by J. A. Hallum of Oklahoma City, have announced they will rebuild at once. Hallum did not answer his telephone Monday night but it was understood from friends that he also plans rebuilding.

The exact cause of the fire which broke out in the elevator shaft of the Berry department store has not been determined. Oklahoma City's fire department sent three trucks to the fire, and with this equipment, the fire was controlled at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, an hour after it began. Just before the arrival of the Oklahoma City equipment, the pumps of the Norman department burned out their bearings.

In 1789 there were 4,000,000 Americans in this country, of these about 80 percent were English in origin, seven percent Scotch-Irish, five German and one percent Irish.

City Court Hears
Number of Cases
at Today's Session

Labor Day was followed in a few cases by appearances before the mayor of the city to explain to the head of the police department why the laws of the city were said to have been violated.

Speeders, who apparently had felt the significance of the holiday too strongly and had shown their joy for a day free from toil by overstepping the limits set by the city statutes furnished the bulk of the trials in police court.

Drunks were not numerous but several who had imbibed too freely of forbidden liquors were brought before the court and reminded of their offenses by the application of fines.

One gun (oter was taken in but it is not yet known who was the object of his aiming himself in defiance of the law or of what person he was afraid that he should carry a forbidden weapon.

Frank Jackson, One
of the Pioneers of
Ada, Passes Away

J. F. Jackson, aged 63, died at an early hour this morning at his home on the corner of East 12th and Rennie.

The funeral services will be conducted from the home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. C. C.
Morris, pastor of the First Baptist church officiating.

Deceased was a native of Georgia, but left that state early in life for the West. For 22 years he and his wife lived at their present location, coming here when Ada was but a village and taking part in all the stirring events attending the building of the town and the transformation of the territory into the state. During most of this time Mr. Jackson was engaged in the furniture business.

For 40 years he had been a loyal member of the Baptist church and lived a consistent Christian life.

Mr. Jackson had suffered for three years from a lingering illness which he was unable to conquer and death was at last the victor in the battle for life.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS
IN REUNION AT GUAYAMA

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico.—Members of the 4th Ohio Volunteer Infantry organization, who participated in the occupation of Guayama during the Spanish-American war gathered amid scenes of old-time battle there, recently, on the occasion of the twenty-fifth annual reunion.

The members believe they are the first veterans ever to stage a reunion in the country where they fought. Former soldiers from all states attended. Col. G. B. Donavin of Columbus, O., was re-elected president of the organization.

BANDITS BLOW
RAILROAD SAFE

Get Small Sum of Cash but Destroy Valuable Records of Office.

(By the Associated Press)

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Sept. 4.— Unidentified bandits dynamited the safe in the M. K. & T. railroad station at Pawhuska, ten miles south of here, early today, and escaped with approximately $1800 in express money orders and $50 in cash. Valuable records were destroyed in the explosion.

William Barry, who said he was asleep in the station at the time, notified the station agent and persons living in the vicinity of the depot. He is being held pending an investigation.

The number of men who participated in the robbery is not known.
The safe was blown within an hour after the agent had closed the station and gone home after meeting a train out of Oklahoma City which passes through here at 4:30 a. m.

Barry, who claimed he was violently awakened by the blast, said he did not see the intruders. Neither were there any other witnesses so far as is known.

Four National Bank
Officials are Held
Under Indictment

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 4.— Guy Robertson and Sam Maddux, president and cashier respectively of the First National Bank of Lawton, and D. E. Crist and W. H.
Tollis, president and cashier of the First National bank at McLoud, Pottawatomie county, have been arrested on indictments returned by a federal grand jury at Guthrie charging violation of the national banking act, it became known here today.

Robertson is a former president of the Oklahoma bankers association.

They are being held on bond of $3,000 each pending hearing. They are charged with violation of a section of the penal code. Specific allegations against Robertson and Maddux charge that they made false returns to the comptroller of the currency.

CORRECTION

In the advertisement of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company appearing in Sunday's edition of The Ada Evening News, the first sentence should have read:

"Development and growth cannot be encouraged in any with or town or village—in these modern days—without the assurance of unlimited electric power." The error occurred in leaving "out" out of "without," making the meaning exactly opposite of what was intended.

HARRELD SAYS LEAGUE
OF NATIONS WILL FAIL

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Senator John W. Harreld of Oklahoma, who claims to have been elected a representative in congress as the "first anti-league of nations candidate in this country," expressed a conviction on his return from abroad late yesterday that "the league will demonstrate its impracticability and impotence by failing to preserve peace between Italy and Greece through arbitration." He was a delegate to the interparliamentary union at Copenhagen.

"My trip has only emphasized my view that we have no place in the league," he added.

"Even if the United States had joined the league, I believe it would be powerless to prevent such clashes as that which has resulted in the bombardment and occupation of the island of Corfu."

COOPER WINS IN SECOND ROUND

Big Crowd Witnesses Both Main Bout and the Preliminaries.

A crowd of approximately eleven hundred enthusiastic fight fans saw two actual knockouts and a technical K. O. during the fight program presented last night by the business men's athletic club at the national guard armory. The first match, the kid bout, ended with a decision in favor of the smaller boy.

In the main event Arch Cooper added another knockout to his string by ending the bout in the second round with a terrific blow just under the heart. Harry Robinson of Chicago, the victim of Cooper's right, had until then put up a good showing against the local fighter but lost the match when Cooper changed his attack suddenly from the face and with one punch flooded his opponent for the count.

The first round opened with both fighters sparring cautiously for openings with some infighting. Both led Cooper landing several light lefts to the face. Cooper uppercut with left, forcing Robinson to cover.
Robinson led fight to the face.
Cooper retaliating with several lefts to his opponent's head.

The second round saw both fighters opening up and beginning to mix. Both boxers gave and took blows in body to body punching.
Cooper uppercutting once with his left. Cooper tapped Robinson's face several times, then drove a hard left to the head, forcing Robinson to clinch. Shortly after Cooper drove suddenly under Robinson's guard with his right, catching him just under the heart and sending him to the floor for the count.

The main bout was refereed by Lou Cutler, prominent Oklahoma City sportsman and matchmaker.

The match between Yellowboy Anderson and Kid Ferguson negroes, promised to be amusing for the peculiar style of boxing and Anderson's unusual windup before striking at his smaller opponent. The bout came to a sudden close after a minute of the first round had passed when Ferguson leaped into the air and drove his right into Anderson's features. The big darky fell to the floor and after the count was dragged to his corner. Among the casualties in this match was a badly broken nose received by the loser.

The semi-final match provided an upset when Nolen Young and Young Masters met for the first time.

Masters outweighed his opponent by eighteen pounds and had the advantage of reach but at the end of the third round was content to have his towel thrown into the ring to signify that the contest was over as far as he was concerned.

Announcement was made that Claude Sparks, whose willingness to mix it with his opponents make him a favorite wherever he fights, will meet Hamp Brown of Lawton here September 12 in what promises to be one of the hottest ring battles ever offered here. Brown is known as a fighter first and a boxer afterwards so a good program is assured.

EARTHQUAKE IN JAPAN GROWING
IN MAGNITUDE

Property Loss Will Amount to Billions of Dollars, Report Says.

HALF MILLION DEAD

Relief Being Rushed to Starving Population of Stricken District.

(By the Associated Press)

Virtual destruction of Tokio and Yokohama is reported in the first direct communication received from Tokio by the outside world since the earthquake and tidal wave followed by fire laid waste an important section of Hondo, the chief island of Japan, last Saturday.
The communication was from an Associated Press staff correspondent.

It appears that the disaster is greater than previous reports have indicated. The ministry of marine estimates the dead in Tokio alone at 150,000; the best estimates place the dead in Yokohama at 100,000; the virtual destruction of Nagoya, a town of 620,000, is reported, and Yokosuka, a town of 70,000, is said to have been wiped out by success five attacks of earthquake, tidal wave and fire.

Grave damage has been done in the summer resort sections about Hakone and on the Izu peninsula. The monetary loss in To-kiro alone is placed at two and one-half billions of dollars. Martial law is effective in the stricken cities.

More than 3,500,000 bushels of rice are being rushed from southern Japan and Korea to the stricken regions where thousands are reported starving and in Tokio suffering from thirst because of the wrecked water supply.

The death or injury of members of the royal houses is feared, though the emperor, empress and prince regent are safe. Reports that the new premier Yamamoto has been assassinated are current, but these are not confirmed.

Several islands are reported to have disappeared below the surface of the sea, but there has been no confirmation of this.

Communication is at a standstill.
Airlines are being used to carry official messages from Osaka to Tokio.

There have been explosions of oil storage tanks at Yokohama and of gasoline tanks at Tokio and great damage has resulted.

More than 200,000 houses have been destroyed in Tokio, it is estimated. Two years will be required to rebuild the city, if not longer.

The American, French and Italian embassies have been destroyed as has the Chinese legation.

American Consul Killed

SHANGHAI, Sept. 4.—The United States Consul at Yokohama and his wife were killed in the earthquake, according to a radio message from the steamer Jefferson from Yokohama.

American Embassy Safe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—All members of the American embassy staff are safe.

Ambassador Woods advised the state department today in the first message received from him since the earthquake that none of the embassy staff were injured, although the masonry buildings were completely destroyed.

The ambassador said that the food situation is very acute and asked that rations be sent at once from the Philippine islands.

A message from the American consul at Shanghai confirms the report that Max D. Kirjaffoff, American consul at Yokohama, and his wife are dead.

Crazed Victims Drowned

Innumerable bodies of earthquake victims were clogging the river Fumida which flows through Tokio. Thousands of men and women, overcome with excitement and fatigue, went mad and threw themselves into the river when the shocks were appearing. Thousands of others perished when a bridge across the river collapsed.

Half Million Lives Lost.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Casualties from earthquake and fire total 500,000 and 300,000 houses have been burned it is estimated by the metropolitan police of To-kiro, according to a courier from Oyama who reported today to the radio corporation of America.

"Where have you been, mio Bella?" he demanded, gayly.

As Ann looked at his radiant happiness, a perverse desire to shatter it arose within her. "I've been to take a look at your church," she said, coldly.

"My church? Per Bacco—our church, carissimo—is it not? In nine days we share all things."

"Shall we? Shall we, really, Guido?" "You ask me that?" His devastation at her doubt was thorough, but theatrical.

Ann persisted, in spite of him. "We don't share anything at all, now. . . . There are things I cannot even talk to you about. . . . It makes me very unhappy." She broke off, in a panic lest tears should make her protest ineffective.

"What things?" "Well—that night at Gettysburg, for instance."

"No, you are right, not that."

"But why not? It is where you fell in love with me. You told me so, that morning, before you left. Don't you remember? It is a part of us—that night. . . . It is ridiculous to act as if it hadn't happened! When two people love each other they should be natural. . . . We are never natural, when we are together."

"Nature? She is for the people—not for you and me." "But I am of the people, Guido. . . . You never seem to understand that! I wasn't born to all this luxury. When I was a child I used to be poor; I peeled the potatoes, and brought the cow in at night, and in winter I cleaned away the snow. . . . You don't like me to talk about that, do you?"

Guido's dark face flushed. "No. For the Contessa Avezzana it is not necessary to go quite so far back. In my country no one will question where I find you. It will be enough that you have become—my wife."

"It will never be enough for me!" Ann burst out. "Guido—can't you see that I am all wrong for you? Can't you understand that I can never make you happy?" She was horrified at her words as she said them, but she did not withdraw them. Instead she waited, breathless, to hear what Avezzana would say.

To her amazement, he patted her hand with complete calm and murmured: "You are nervous, my Ann. . . . Do not distress yourself; you have only to leave all to me."

It was too much; the girl's nerves, to which he had so soothingly referred, suddenly snapped. She poured a torrent of appeal upon him; she found herself saying things of which she never had any premonition; she begged him to let her go—to forget her. It was after this climax that she felt the Italian's cold eyes upon her; they brought her up sharp.

"Go? No—never," he said frigidly. "You are a child to speak to me so! . . . This is what comes of unbridled talk. You see, my way is better."

"But, Guido—I don't love you. I never entirely realized it before—but I don't."

"Why should you, before we marry? It is enough that you do not dislike me. . . . After, you may leave it to me."

"But suppose I shouldn't grow to care for you?"

Avezzana smiled superbly. "I take the chance," he said.

TWO SCREEN GIANTS BATTLE FOR KATHERINE MACDONALD

William Conklin the gifted six-footer, whose face and figure are familiar to picture theater-goers, has every reason to believe that he is the victim of a conspiracy in which the beautiful Katherine MacDonald and her director, Victor Seitzinger, played important parts. And since Conklin is nursing a sprained arm, numerous bruises and a discolored eye, he has sufficient evidences to bear out his statement.

When B. P. Schulberg provided "The Lonely Road," coming to the McSwain theatre, as the next First National attraction with Miss MacDonald in the stellar role, a search for an unusual cast of players was begun. William Conklin was at once agreed upon by star and director as the man to enact the difficult role of picturesque physician who is engaged in a physical encounter with the hero.

On reading the part, Mr. Conklin smiled at the description of the fight. It was to be unusually realistic, but from the security of his own six feet two, he felt well able to hold up his end of the struggle.

Then came the surprise. Orville Caldwell, six feet five inches, broad and husky—named by Elinor Glyn as "the most perfect physical specimen of manhood on the American stage"—was selected to play the part of the indignant hero. The fight was staged with all the realism that the

"Doesn't it make any difference to you, knowing how I feel?" "It puts me on my mettle, mio Bella."

And that was the end of that: Ann realized quite clearly that she was, this time, well caught. In a moment Mrs. William came bustling into the room with a foreign package in her hands, which Avezzana identified as addressed in his mother's fine handwriting. The two of them opened it expeditiously, while Ann stood apart, watching them with sullen eyes. There was beautiful old Venetian lace in the package, and a necklace of diamonds which sent Mrs. Cortlandt into an ecstasy. She insisted on trying it around the bride's slim throat, in spite of Ann's indifference. . . . Avezzana stood looking on with shining eyes, and the girl realized that he considered her apathetic attitude a becoming one for the future Contessa Avezzana.

She escaped as soon as she could, on the plea of being very tired.

When she had gained her room, she shut the door behind her, and stood for some moments with her back against it. She was breathing hard and her eyes were wild. . . . He was merciless. She looked about her at her pleasant, familiar room. . . . She would be in strange places, too. . . . There was no one to whom she might talk freely. If only her guardian were at home! She flung herself across her bed, in a passion of tears.

After a long time her sobs lessened, and she lay for a while, listening to the homely sounds that drifted in from the square. . . . She was, now, more melancholy than desperate. . . . She wondered if she might get Fanny to advise her, but a memory of her friend's aloofness since she had broken with Hendricks made her give that up with a sobbing sigh. The aunts were worse than useless, and she had no confidence in Mr. Renessey's good sense. . . . Peter! How stupid she had been not to have thought of him before! There was, at last, some one to whom she could talk with absolute freedom! She sprang up, and wrote to him at once.

"Dear Peter: "I am to be married next week to Count Guido Avezzana. He is an Italian, and I do want to see you, very much. My uncle is still away, and I feel very lonely. If you are at Milton Center I wish you would come up to New York."

"Yours sincerely,

"Ann Byrne.

"P. S.—I hope you are quite well again. I shall always remember that you saved my life. A. B."

After that she was happier, although she could not have said why. It was less than a week before the wedding, when very early one morning old Joseph brought a note up to her. "A little boy, he bring it," he said. "They is no answer, Miss Ann." The girl opened it listlessly, entirely uninterested in its contents. She read:

"Annie, you must come out and talk to me. There is no use in my coming to the house; I'd have no chance with you, with Mrs. Cortlandt and all that lot. Bring a key to the gate with you, and we will sit in the square where we won't be disturbed. I have to see you alone. It is a matter of life or death. Peter."

"Peter!" Ann's heart softened at his sprawling signature. Of course she would go to him. "Good old Peter!" she said aloud, putting on her hat at a glance, regardless of the way she looked. Peter was waiting for her by the gate. He looked very well, she thought, as she ran toward him; not beautiful, like Avezzana—commonplace, perhaps—but strong and plain and comfortable. His rugged face was white, and she wondered if he were not yet entirely well.

"Annie," was all he said, as she gave him her hand, and she fancied there was reproach in his tone.

"I am awfully glad to see you, been more surprised. Peter's eyes were fierce, and the bony structure of his jaw was suddenly noticeable to an extraordinary extent.

Peter."

"You must be mad," the girl said at length. Her feelings were divided between indignation and amazement.

"I am not half so mad as you are," Peter snorted indignantly, "marrying a foreigner like that! How do you know he will make you happy? Going off to a strange country, too—to Italy—with him! What would you do if you didn't like it, away off there alone?"

Ann shivered a little, for suddenly the castle in Piedmont, where they were to go on their arrival in Italy, seemed like a prison to her. "You haven't any right to talk to me like this, Peter," she cried fiercely. "I am unhappy enough, as it is."

Peter's entire face lit up at this incautious betrayal. He pounced upon it at once. "Unhappy, are you?" he asked. "That makes it simpler." He faced her mockingly. "I bet you're half scared," he said, "and wishing you didn't have to go through with it."

"There's something you don't know, Peter," she could feel her cheeks burn under his eager eyes. "I—have to marry Guido. We—we were to gether all night, at Gettysburg."

"What of it?"

Radiant relief flashed into Ann's face. "Oh, that is what I tried to make them see! We were trying to get away from the battle, Peter, and we couldn't find the Sanitary commission, and I was too tired to go on, and we found an empty house."

"You can tell me the story of your life some other time, Annie. The thing to do now is to make up your mind to throw over this Italian."

"Oh, Peter, you know what I did to Hendricks? I have to marry Count Avezzana, now I said I would. Do you know what everybody would call me if I didn't?—A jilt! And I don't see how I could go on living with the Cortlandts if I did a thing like that, now they're so pleased with the match!" She began to cry, softly and hopelessly.

"You don't have to live with the Cortlandts," Peter said roughly. He leaned over and put an urgent hand on her arm. "You're coming to Chicago to live with me."

Ann was too startled to reply. She looked at him in wide-eyed astonishment, her last tears trembling on her cheeks. Peter answered the interrogation in her look.

"You don't think I came here just to talk, do you?" he demanded. "I came to take you back with me, and I am going to do it. Do you know what this is?" He produced a stiff official-looking paper from his coat pocket. Ann shook her head, speechless. "It's a marriage license, that's what it is! I've got it all fixed up with a minister at the Unitarian church, to marry us this morning."

"But, Peter," Ann expostulated feebly, "I never heard anything so ridiculous in my life! I am going to marry Count Avezzana next Wednesday, at eight o'clock, in the Catholic cathedral."

"Are you a Catholic?"

"Not yet, but I will be, Monday."

"Well, you can go ahead and be a Catholic, if you want to, but the wedding is off! Understand that?"

"Why, Peter, I'll have to go through with it—so late, like this."

Peter frowned at her fiercely. "You have to do nothing of the sort," he stormed. Suddenly he let go his grasp on her arm to take hold of her shoulders and pull her toward him with a pleasant roughness. Then he kissed her.

"How about it?" he demanded boyishly, holding her away from him and laughing into her perturbed face.

"Oh, Peter, I don't know. I've got my trousseau and everything, and Guido has given me a lot of things—rings and brooches—and I have had a present from his mother, and a letter from uncle. I think he wishes me to marry Count Avezzana—I've been such a trial to him. I couldn't disappoint him again."

Peter's mouth set in a straight severe line. "This has nothing to do with any one in the world except you and me," he said sternly. "I guess you know I love you, all right. I didn't say anything before because I am so d-d poor. I thought I'd go back to Chicago and work like the devil and make some money before I tried to tie you up, but you have rushed me. You belong to me, Annie, don't you know that?"

A delightful peace settled down on Ann. "I never knew it before this minute," she sighed happily.

"It will be hard work at first, but you won't mind that, will you? You're strong, and you weren't born to all this luxury. We'll do something out there before we're through, and we'll do it together. Partners! I've got a little money. Before I get through I'll make a rich woman of you. But just at first, Annie, if it is hard work, you won't mind?"

"Peter, I'd love to work," Ann assured him expansively. "I hate being a fine lady. But do you think it would be possible for me to marry you, and just go off? Leave all this behind me?"

Peter laughed and kissed her again. "Possible?" he said. "It's happening. You will be my wife in half an hour."

They came out of the little square with an even more conspiratorial air than that with which they had gone in. It was almost noon and the streets were deserted. Peter would not allow Ann out of his sight even long enough to go home for her gloves, but hurried her off to the horse cars, where she sat silent while he talked to her steadily of the new life she was about to undertake. He gave her no time for thought, no empty moments in which they held out to me when they didn't tell me who my opponent would be," said Conklin, after the big scene had been screened.

"It may be all right, but I think

two men could inject into it, with the result that many unexpected bruises were inflicted.

"It may be all right, but I think

she might change her mind. The minister was waiting for them. He seemed extraordinarily underlier to Ann, used to Episcopal robes and ritual, but his church was convincingly righteous, and she was forced to believe that the brief ceremony which they went through was entirely legal. The minister shook hands with them both, and it was over.

Out on the street Ann wondered if horror were the feeling that overpowered her, but when she stole a glance at Peter's determined face, she knew that it was not. Secure in his strength she could no longer fear the future, no matter how long it might be. It was he who told her just what she should do. She was to go home to Washington square, put into her new trunks all her old clothes, and such parts of her trousseau as might be useful in the extremely plain life which confronted her. She was then to leave a tag on the trunk with directions to forward it to a hotel in Chicago.

"The Adams house is pretty grand for us," Peter said, laughing. "But I guess we can stand a few days of it until we find a place of our own to live in. After all, a man doesn't take a honeymoon every day."

He waited outside in the square while Ann went home to do her packing. She wondered, as she climbed the familiar high steps, if this were the last time her feet would ever pass that friendly threshold, and as the shadow of the house fell over her she thought, too late, of her guardian's possible reaction to her mad behavior.

She slipped in and up the stairs without meeting any one. Her room was already in a pandemonium of packing; three trunks stood about with their great mouths gaping for the fine new clothes of her trousseau. She chose the larger one, and hastily put into it the plainest dresses she had, a part of her linen, and her underclothes, but she left all the finer things behind her. Avezzana's jewelry she tied up in a little box; she struggled for some moments to write him a note to accompany it, but found that she was quite unable to do so. Instead she scrawled across a piece of paper, "I am sorry, Ann," and folded it away with the diamonds. Peter's wide gold wedding ring looked very plain and sensible on her hand, in place of Avezzana's gorgeous token. There remained only the necessity of writing to Mrs. William and this she accomplished with ease. "I am married to Peter Smith," she said briefly, "and I am going to Chicago with him today. I know there is no use trying to make you understand how I came to do it, but please believe I am sorry to pain all of you, and Count Avezzana. Tell him for me that I am ashamed of myself, but that I cannot help it." She addressed the note to Mrs. Cortlandt and then for

Labor Day Reflections

(By an Observer)
Labor Day is set aside as a holiday but for some it means only the hardest kind of work. Witness the boxer, for whom the holiday means a fight with another aspiring ring battler, who must expend an immense amount of energy for the pleasure of those who have for one day laid aside their work garments and have donned their pleasure seeking raiment and gone forth to seek relief from the grind of daily toil.

Mark also the baseball player who frolics about the diamond in keen competition with others of the same class to provide amusement for the holiday makers.

Others who violate the spirit of the holiday may be seen sweating over stubborn tires or profanely seeking the remedy for the elusive trouble with his engine. Labor Day and man-made holidays do not apply to automobiles as many have found to their sorrow.

For those who desire to spend the day in celebration far from the maddening crowd in the peaceful haunts of nature as yet unravaged by the hand of man there is no surcease from labor and work. Preparation of car and lunch, reaching the destination and returning after a strenuous day in the open, tends only to make the celebrants grateful that such holidays do not come more often than they do and the usual round of duties a safe retreat from the exertion attendant upon Labor Day celebration.

The main streets of the city proved yesterday to be the gathering place of many of the citizens of the place, as if the habit of coming to the business section had brought them on a holiday to the center of business. Gathering early on the corners and later extending in groups along the length of the downtown sidewalks the men of the city took their places and occupied the morning with casual talk and exchange of gossip.

From the aimless wanderings of many of these bystanders it could easily be judged that the holiday meant little to them as a time for entertainment and meant for them an extra effort to while away the time usually occupied by work.

Labor Day has its uses for in addition to serving as a memorial to labor itself and its importance in our daily affairs it acts as an agent in bringing to those who cease it to a proper appreciation of work as a means of happiness.

FORMER ADA GIRL TO TEACH AT RIVERSIDE

The Riverside Conservatory of Music has been fortunate in securing the services of Inez Norris Moore, a talented teacher of dramatic art and expression. As the contract will last for two years those interested in these arts will have ample time to perfect themselves under her instruction.

This artist has studied with Pauline Sherwood Townsend, head of pageantry at the Boston School of Expression whose method she uses in her teaching. Everywhere her public appearances are received with the highest praise from critics. She has established for herself a great reputation as a producer of stage plays.

While here she will give lessons covering dramatics, stage craft personality and poise, and social etiquette. The course in personality and poise promise to be especially appealing, as it is something that every one is desirous of cultivating and something which very few people are able to do without assistance and guidance.

She is a great student of psychology and her success in bringing out the individuality of the student has been phenomenal. Youth and charm, ing personality are two attributes that spell success for this new member of the faculty.—Riverside (Calif.) Press.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart. "This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A BENEDICTION:—Unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless.—Jude 24.

ITALY'S GAME

The haste with which Italy took action against Greece in the matter of the assassination of five Italian officials on Greek soil indicates that it is not actual redress she wanted as much as it was an excuse to gain more power and a strategic base at the mouth of the Adriatic sea that would enable her to bottle up the sea and convert it into an Italian lake. She therefore demanded conditions of Greece that she very well knew would not be acceded to and then seized Corfu and some other isles belonging to Greece.

Bad feeling has existed between Italy and Jugo-Slavia ever since the close of the war. They have never been able to agree on the division of territory wrested from Austria and as a consequence their relations have been strained. Should Italy bottle up the Adriatic Jugo-Slavia would be cut off from the sea and her communication with the outer world badly hampered. The only remaining outlet would be through the port of Salonika in Greek territory, and should Greece refuse to submit to Italy's demands it is more than probable that an Italian fleet would be sent to blockade or seize that port, thus making the isolation of Jugo-Slavia complete. It is highly probable that it is Jugo-Slavia rather than Greece against whom the blow is leveled.

Little Greece has taken the only course open to her—appealed to the League of Nations. However, Italy does not appear inclined to submit to League mediation and that complicates matters still further. This will be a supreme test of the effectiveness of the League as an agency of maintaining the peace of the world. If its efforts fail another war looms. Jugo-Slavia and Greece could give the Italians a hard fight and it is highly probable that the other Balkan nations would soon be involved and not impossible that the big powers might also be plunged into a bloody war, all caused by the covetousness of Italy.

THE FOURTH CONTROL

One hundred thousand lives are snuffed out in a convulsion of nature in the overcrowded island of Japan. The world stands aghast as slowly restored communications enlarge the conception of the catastrophe. In a few days it will pass from the newspaper columns and conversation, new habitations for men will be built upon the little spot of earth which has proved such a fruitful but such a treacherous cradle for a race. In a few years, mention of this terror will be made only when somebody looks up the list for comparing some new quake, just as this is compared with that of 1702 in the same area, when 200,000 were killed.

In the plan of Nature, which is based on enteries, individual human life weighs very little. Checks and balances are introduced, just as in the insect and animal worlds, to prevent overpopulation. The surest and most efficient of these is disease, then comes private murder, then war, and, last of the big controls, volcanoes, earthquakes and tidal waves.

When we shall have learned to prevent disease and murder, and have banished war, the burden of controlling population will be thrown upon the fourth in rank of checks and balances. Nature will have to learn new terrors if it is to be equal to the task.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

On the afternoon of September 10 the sun will be in eclipse for about two hours. Farther to the southwest it will be total but in this section it will lack a little of being complete. A rim of the great luminary will be seen at the height of the eclipse. However, it will be so nearly like night that the chickens will likely hunt their roost. An eclipse is always an interesting phenomenon and among the uncivilized tribes it is a matter of alarm, for they think that a great monster is swallowing the sun. They make all the noise possible to fight the monster into disgorging his fiery mouthful and when the moon passes along on its way they rejoice that their charms, incantations and noise have had the desired effect.

The national election of next year is gradually approaching but still no big issue has been dug up. Looks like the tariff question will have to be revamped for it is one question that is always before the nation. This time the Republicans will be on the defensive and will have some explaining to do about the workings of their last masterpiece of legislation.

Again the government's estimate of the cotton crop has been cut down and the price is up as a consequence. However, after the round of low prices in 1920 and the scourge of weevils since then, everybody will rejoice with the farmers who will once more get a fair price, even though they may not have so many bales.

The United States and Mexico are on official speaking terms again. Perhaps trade relations between the countries will also be strengthened. If peace is maintained in Mexico we should see some great developments within a few years.

Teacher Assignment Now Complete For Opening of Schools For Fall Session

As previously announced, the public schools of Ada will open for the fall term work, Monday, September 10, at 8:30. All preliminary preparations have been made and from a standpoint of material equipment, prospects were never better for a splendid year's work. The faculty is at last complete and final assignments to buildings and subjects to be taught have been made. The buildings have been thoroughly renovated and disinfected and considerable improvements made in looks and convenience.

The personnel of the teaching force is up to the high standards of the state. The high school faculty is strong and meets the exacting requirements of North Central Association. All teachers in this department of the public schools of the city hold degrees from reputable institutions and have been selected for the special fitness for the work to which they have been assigned. The new members of the high school faculty are Miss Willie Mae Corbin, A.B., Oklahoma College for Women, assistant in English; Churchill Thomas, A.B., East Central Teachers college, assistant in Science; B. M. Bliss, head of the Department of Music, formerly of Phillips University; Roy McKeown, A.B., East Central Teachers college, assistant in Languages; Mrs. Wick Adair, A.B., East Central Teachers college, assistant in academic department; James W. Huff, Head of the Commercial Department, Mrs. Wilbur Lee will be Registrar and Dean of Girls.

The new members of the ward faculty all hold life certificates and have had at least one year experience, the minimum of the city school. The new members of the ward school faculty are Miss Almeda Adams, Mr. Meaders Jones, Miss Viola West and Miss Donna Bell Lee, assigned to the Willard School; Jim J. Ragland and Miss Kathleen Smith, assigned to the Irving School; Miss Willette Driskill assigned to the Hays school; K. W. Harris, Harvey Faust, assigned to the Washington School; Miss Opal Little and Miss Violet Moore, assigned to the Glenwood school.

The school facilities of this city will, in all probability, be taxed to the capacity this year. The census enumeration shows a gain of two hundred over the preceding year and present indications are that will steadily grow. The Board of Education has wisely made provision to take care of this demand and will be able to meet it.

The public generally and the friends and patrons of the public schools in particular owe the Board of Education and the teachers undivided support in the years program of work.

The Board of Education, consisting of L. T. Walters, president, Mrs. Mabel Browall, secretary, B. M. Bobbitt, treasurer, R. F. Wilbourn, vice-president and W. L. Whitaker, L. Warr and H. C. Evans, members, are doing all in their power to safeguard the interests of the taxpayer in the investment of money entrusted to them. Much credit is due these men who give liberally of their time to the service of the community without thought of remuneration or even commendation but often sure and verse criticism.

MONTE CRISTO UP-TO-DATE

After a search that led through untold hardships, the Count of Monte Cristo found the secret cavern. Gold, gems and untold wealth were his.

But think of this! Every day, simply by spending a few minutes running through the advertising columns of this paper, you can find a wealth of things that Monte Cristo could never know. Things that make your life rich in comforts! Countless conveniences that iron out the mechanics of existence! Economies that bring within your easy reach, things that once were priceless!

We sometimes overlook the important role that advertising plays in making our lives pleasant and altogether livable. Advertising is as much a part of to-day's life as electricity, antiseptic surgery or automobiles. It keeps us up-to-date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives. It presents for our approval articles of all kinds and for all purposes. The requirements of each member of the family are met by advertised offers of good merchandise of proved value.

The advertisements save time, money and effort for those who read them and follow their guidance. They are practical guarantees of satisfaction.

Recognition of Mexico Considered In Line of American Policy Ideals

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Recognition of the government of President Obregon is regarded here as in line with the American policy, stated through successive administrations, of giving disinterested help to a friendly country so long as the rights of Americans are properly safeguarded. The announced aim of the Washington government has been directed consistently to such a course, although often with difficulty because of outrages upon the persons and properties of American nationals in Mexico, and of discouraging international complications incident to a condition of revolution and civil war running over more than a decade.

The questions arising under this policy have been among the most delicate with which the United States had had to deal, and have involved military patrols along the border, naval and military expeditions into Mexico, embargoes upon the exportation of munitions, and a succession of international conferences touching indirectly on the broad question of relations with Latin-America in general.

Recently the principal question at issue has had to do with the interpretation of Article 27 in the Mexican constitution of 1917, now satisfactorily adjusted through a definite understanding of its retroactive features reached in the recent Mexico City conversations.

This question was regarded as of primary importance by the administration of President Wilson, and later the Harding administration suggested to Mexico City a treaty of amity and commerce as a means to a definite understanding. The treaty plan, however, proved unsatisfactory to President Obregon, and in time the adjustment was reached through conversations, the American government making clear that it was interested in the substance rather than the form of the accommodation.

It was during the Huerta regime that American marines in 1914 were seized at Tampico by a Mexican army officer, and although released with an apology, a salute to the flag was demanded by Rear Admiral Mayo. It was refused, and President Wilson ordered the American naval forces to seize Vera Cruz in order to prevent the landing of a cargo of arms by the German steamer Ypiranga. The order had been carried out and war seemed imminent when the services of Argentina, Brazil and Chile were accepted as mediators. A conference was held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., but was without much practical effect because of the rapidly changing situation in Mexico.

Huerta's power was rapidly disintegrating as a result of the attitude of the United States and military victories of the constitutionalists in the north headed by General Carranza, then governor of Coahuila. Carranza had proclaimed himself in a state of revolt, and had been joined by several of Madero's former generals, including Francisco Villa, Obregon and Pablo Gonzales.

Huerta fled the country in July, 1914, and Carranza, entering Mexico City, assumed the executive power. Although factional differences at once developed, after varying fortunes Carranza was given de facto recognition by the United States in the fall of 1915, and de jure recognition after he had been elected president for four years under the constitution framed by a constituent assembly in 1917.

The refusal of Villa to support Carranza because of the latter's failure to hold an immediate constitutional election resulted in a state of guerrilla warfare in northern Mexico accompanied by serious consequences on the American side of the border. The raid on Columbus, N. M., by Villa was followed by a National Guard mobilization and the dispatch into Mexico of the expedition headed by General Pershing in what proved to be a fruitless ## search for Villa.

The condition in the north was finally accentuated in the spring of 1920 by a revolt of governors headed by Adolfo de la Huerta in Sonora, who objected to a plan for the arrest of General Obregon after the latter had announced his candidacy for the presidency in opposition to Ignacio Bonillas, favored by Carranza as his successor. The movement developed such proportions that Carranza fled the capital and sought refuge in the mountains of Hidalgo, where he was slain by Indian soldiers.

De la Huerta was proclaimed provisional president and confirmed office by congress, which then convoked an election. As a result General Obregon was elected for a four year term and assumed office Dec. 1, 1920. He established a military command of the situation regarded here as satisfactory, and irritations for the United States greatly diminished.

Many nations recognized Huerta and several, including a number in Latin-America, have recognized Obregon. Others, however, notably Great Britain, preferred to await action by the United States.

Steinberg took first on a single over second. Shirley was safe on a fielder's choice. Funk sacrificed advancing Steinberg and Shirley Osgood singled, scoring Steinberg and Shirley. Tabor hit into a double play. Waner to Fain to Rutledge.

For the rest of the game Blankenship had the visitors well in hand, allowing four more hits making a total of six for the entire game. His pitching with the backing of the team prevented the Wilson and Company contenders from threatening seriously again.

Ada players secured nine hits scoring in the second and sixth innings. Although the game was deadlocked at the end of the twelfth the local players threatened again and again to score but failed to put across the winning run.

Features of this game were brilliant catches by Young and Page and excellent support of both pitchers.

NEW FILM TAKES PUBLIC INTO HOMES OF STARS

All of us who constitute the great screen public have often wondered what takes place when the big studios are closed for the day and what becomes of the stars. It is the popular impression that the majority of them are basking in the spotlight of public favor—dancing, etc. This is a wrong conclusion, declares Elinor Glyn, whose latest story, written especially for the screen, "The World's A Stage," will be the feature attraction at the American Theatre Wednesday. "The majority of screen players live as orderly lives as the hide-bound dwellers in some scrupulous religious community," says the famous author of "Three Weeks."

Mrs. Glyn is returning to England thoroughly convinced of the clean living standards of the American screen players. The spectator is taken into the home of the star. There he sees that she is an every-day human being. The spectator also catches a glimpse of the hardships attending a barnstorming theatrical troupe, as well as the activities of a studio in full operation. "The World's A Stage" is a disillusioning play acted by an all-star cast headed by Dorothy Phillips whose talent enables her to make the role vibrant with emotion. Kenneth Harlan and Bruce McRae render fine support.

DIXON TO PILOT MEN TO BIG RING

Manager of Ada Fighters To Take Proteges to St. Paul.

To A. R. Dixon belongs the credit of establishment of boxing as an outstanding sport recreation in Ada.

Dixon, who came to Ada six years ago from Kansas, was the originator of one of the first fight cards to merit success here and has produced satisfactory entertainment for the fight fans of Ada since.

Dixon, as manager of Cooper and Sparks, has brought some of the best talent in the fight ring to the view of Ada fans during the past two years and has advanced the fight game to a stage of clean sport for ring followers.

Dixon pins his hope for better ends in the game with Cooper and Sparks, who go with him to St. Paul next April to make a bow in the big game of the Northwest. Dixon has already completed arrangements for exhibitions for Sparks and Cooper.

Dixon had played a prominent role in the fight game prior to his connections here. The Ada fight pilot had been connected with athletic clubs in Hosawatomie and Paola, Kansas, and Omaha before coming to Ada.

Two of Dixon's best men under his old connections were Fred Smitz, the Flying Dutchman, and Johnnie Chambers. Both men were top raters in their time.

Dixon also took a part in the game personally and at one time was considered one of the most promising of fighters.

V. L. H.

Everything that runs, excepting some Oklahoma City street cars has a conductor. Even this column has had a conductor in the person of V. L. H. and many are the twitters that his sallies upon the proletariat and its peculiarities have brought to its readers. (The proletariat is in reality the conglomerate mass of the genus homo but the theory is denied by most scientists.) Conductors grow weary of the daily grind and toil and at times feel the call of the far stretches—the great quiet and calm that is so restful—that furnishes especially to a newspaper man, inspiration for reams and reams of copy. So—the conductor V. L. H. has gone to Hugo for his vacation and left the Pinch-Hitter to put over an occasional fast one for slow brains to ponder over. More of the conductor's inspiration later.
